Each year, rural electric cooperatives across the nation sponsor roughly 1,800 students on the Rural Electric Youth Tour to Washington, D.C. The Youth Tour program continues to foster the grassroots spirit of the rural electric cooperatives by demonstrating to high school juniors and seniors how our government works and what the electric cooperative business model is all about. In a time when energy is at the forefront of our nation's issues, this is a great opportunity to have a hand in the creation of electric cooperative advocates!

Spend six days in our nation's capital visiting famous museums and historical sites and chatting with politicians. The best part? Redwood Electric Cooperative will pay all of the expenses! This is a trip of a lifetime with memories and experiences you will never forget!

Essay Question:

Over 80 years ago, America's farmers and rural citizens joined together to bring electricity to their communities — communities which the for-profit companies refused to serve. As a result, they improved the quality of life for rural Americans by satisfying an unmet need. Today, co-ops of all kinds bring that same spirit of purpose and cooperation to the changing needs of new generations.

“Which of the seven cooperative principles do you think is most important, and why?”
